Off-season Update: August 14, 2009

Well the season is fast approaching and it's been some time since we did an update on here, my hat goes off to these guys who keep their sites so well updated, I don't know how they find the time. The Leonard race team is looking at a big season ahead, our two main sponsors from last season in Steve Jude Motors and NAC Insurance are back on board and this season we have also secured Macmillan Transport. With these deals in place we would like to travel more this season and contest most, if not all the major meetings, I have booked my leave for the NZ champs week and fingers crossed I'll get time off for these meetings.

With more sponsorship the car will be available for teams duty, been some time since I teams raced (2001 Teams champs for the Allstars) but I am sure it will all come back to me, and with the car well on the pace we are confident the team will be an asset to any team we race for, so if your short of a car, hit us up!

The car is coming along now, with a full rebuild taking place, it's looking very short at the moment but should have a new front by the end of this weekend, pretty happy with how the chassis held up last season, but a few big hits at the end took their toll and the right front chassis had had enough and bent, big time!

The car should look different with a new body, I am looking at building something, but it's all still in my head at this point, just trying to sort the best way to go about it and have it look good, I ran my ideas past a mate the other day and he gave me a very odd look so I had to remind him I've never really had any ugly cars, in my opinion anyway! Trust me when I say if it's not cool, it will not see the light of day and all pics will be burned!

Been finding it hard to work on the car at the moment with working late and cold nights here in the Bay, but the weather is getting better and with spring almost here you start to feel like it's Speedway time again so it's all hands on deck to finish the chassis work, I promised Yaz an update and told her I'd do it in the next week or so, that was about four weeks ago, so thanks for your work on this site and most of all your patience Yaz, I promise I'll work harder at updates in the near future!
